---

This in-person workshop will address the importance of recognising and working safely with trauma, in its obvious and more hidden presentations.

For the supervisor this requires self-support, awareness and specific knowledge.

We will focus on a relational and process approach to supervision and consider the implications for good practice in trauma work. This experiential session will recognise both limitations and resources for supervisor, supervisee and client and the importance of context.

Spaces for this event are limited – Book early to secure your place.

Learning Outcomes: By the end of the day participants will be able to:

- Review their role as a supervisor of trauma.
- Apply specific knowledge to working with trauma and the process of change.
- Use one or more new supervision models.
- Identify some of the particular challenges of supervision of trauma.

Presenter: Miriam Taylor is a UKCP registered Gestalt psychotherapist (non-clinical), supervisor and trainer. Having retired from clinical practice in which she specialised in trauma for over twenty-five years, Miriam now includes aspects of collective trauma, social justice issues and climate change in her thinking on trauma. Based in embodied practice, her interest is in the formation of the traumatised relational field, leading to an ecological perspective. She teaches in the UK and internationally and is on the Leadership Team of Relational Change. Publications include: 'Trauma Therapy and Clinical Practice' (2014); 'Deepening Trauma Practice' (2021), and several peer reviewed and invited articles.
